

A Spiritual Community of Hope, Courage, and Compassion

As you may have noticed on Sunday morning, we're still working through the complexities of having multiple users of our OHMF Zoom account. As with most technology, there's a learning curve and we're striving to understand the intricacies and make it easy for everyone to use. This usually entails learning by doing. Thanks for understanding

Our July read will be a classic mystery, The Moonstone by Wilkie Collins.

The Moonstone by Wilkie Collins is a groundbreaking 1868 novel considered the first full-length English detective novel, renowned for its complex plot, multiple narrators, and influence on the mystery genre. The story centers on the theft of a large, cursed yellow diamond from Rachel Verinder's bedroom on her eighteenth birthday, leading to an investigation by the famous detective Sergeant Cuff and uncovering secrets among the household and a group of disguised Hindu priests seeking the gem's return.

Our August read will be Turning Pages by John Sargent.

Turning Pages: The Adventures and Misadventures of a Publisher is a 2023 memoir by former Macmillan CEO John Sargent, offering a humorous and insightful look into his four decades in the publishing industry, from his Wyoming ranch upbringing to high-stakes battles with Amazon and the Trump administration, featuring stories about famous authors and the business's evolution. The book is structured as a collection of short, engaging stories rather than a strict chronological narrative, covering triumphs, challenges, and the changing landscape of publishing, including the rise of ebooks and digital disruption.
